Jackson, Miss., Dec. 26.-Governor Vardaman received a telegram from J. A. Quarles, a prominent citizen of Scooba, Miss., stating that a further uprising had occurred, in which five unknown negroes were killed, and that their slayers had been captured, and asking that 25 troops be dispatched to that place to help hold the prisoners. Conductor Robert Harrison of the Mobile & Ohio railroad, who was ambushed and seriously wounded by a negro, is dead. The origin of the racial troubles here was caused primarily by the meeting in a narrow roadway of wagons driven by a white farmer and a negro respectively. The negro abused the white man, who reported the occurrence to the white villagers at Wahalak. The whites immediately organized themselves and in a fight with the negroes of the community a number of white men were killed, including one of the most prominent in the vicinity. The number of negroes killed in the rioting has never been approximated, but dead negroes have been found in all parts of the settlement since the troutroops no disturbance occurred, although it is believed that three negroes, including George Simpson, one of the principals in the disturbance aboard the Mobile & Ohio train last Sunday, had been lynched just before the arrival of the troops. The citizens of Wahalak will not admit the fact that the men were captured by a posse, but say they were "lost in the swamp" while on their way to town. Two sons of Simpson were shot to Thirty-seven thousand of the city's poor shared in the distribution of Christmas dinners by the Salvation Army, Timothy D. Sullivan and the Bowery mission. Five shousand bankets and 1,000 bags, each containing a fowl and "fixings" sufficient for a family of five persons of more, were distributed by Commander Eva Booth. More than 6,000 of the homeless of the East Side partook of Christmas dinner at the Timothy D. Sullivan association rooms in the Bow ery. No distinctions were made between applicants, except that the lame and the blind were given preference. The majority of those who came for food were evidently in sad need of clothing, for many were without over coats and hundreds were only the remnants of shoes. The day was bitterly cold. As each man departed from the hall a pouch full of tobacco, a pipe and a ticket for a pair of shoes was given him, and then the hall was cleared for the admission of another

AN EGYPTIAN MUMMY.

It Poses as a Modern Oracle in the British Museum.

Can an Egyptian mummy render first class service as an oracle? Can the spirit of the dead return and answer yes or no to the questions of the faithful? Some people in London believe these things are possible, and they have the mummy right in the British museum to prove it. A writer in the London Mail tells all about it: "This strange sibvl is the mummy of top shelf of case P in the first one side, giving a look of life. On the breast is a hawk headed ornament containing a scarab, the sacred beetle. On the wooden models of the hands are rings made of carnelian and precious stones, and an at tempt had been made to imitate women. bracelets by painting. The system of swathing is unusual.

"In wall case No. 10 stands Katebet's painted wooden coffin. It again is singular. On the foot the feet and sandals of the deceased are painted in an unusual manner, and the face is evidently intended for a likeness. The Lady Katebet died in Thebes 2,700 years ago. The measures taken to preserve her body in its full beauty were evidently ary care and fidelity. Is it possible in this later world of miracles in mechanical law that a miracle of natural law is manifested herethat Katebet's spirit is in touch with her body? "The peculiarities of the mummy make it easier to believe, but the way in which answers to questions are given affords a common sense mechanical explanation. The process gone through by the various devotees at this queer shrine is as follows: They approach the case with reverence and lay a hand upon it. Looking earnestly in the golden face of the priestess, they put a question that permits a plain affirmative or negative reply. If the priestess moves the answer is Yes. If she makes no sign it is No.

"The explanation is severely moda dynamo of great power pounding ground of Liza's swarthy counte- and heat. Second, the movement of people in the room would be sufwould move the case in which the mummy lies. The museum is exceptionally well built and therefore When Dr. Mandell Creighton, elastic, answering and giving easily afterward bishop of London, was throughout through vibratory movicar of Embleton he often gave tions wherever generated.
